"I Hope You Know"

Cool mornings, pollen everywhere, and the constant song of birds, give way to the reality of spring. After the winter has been long, the days and sunshine short, the coming of spring signals a return to the beauty we had almost convinced ourselves we had forgotten. When the days are long and the temperatures are high, we see the season of summer. We feel the heat, we expect the occasional pop-up thunderstorm, and we appreciate the colorful skyline in the calm of the storm.

The evening air is just a bit cooler. Do I need a jacket, or will a sweater or long sleeves be enough? You know the conversation when the feel of fall is in the air. You can't wait for the colors, you can't wait for the leaves to show their brilliant colors. You can wait for them to fall, but you know that time will come. Then the words are spoken, "Where did fall go?" Winter arrives, the heavy frost, the anticipation of the first snow, and the first snow day. The "hard" winter gives us cause to look toward spring, with eagerness, and when the day comes, we tend to forget just how hard the winter truly was.

Seasons come and go, they are part of our life, and we see their power each year. Yet there is one season that is always part of our life, always bringing something new; that season is the season of change. The season of change is always losing its leaves; is always blooming new flowers; constantly seeing the rebirth of life and the passing of what once always was. That season has come once more in the lives of our families. We have witnessed another school year come and go with unusual speed. Our students have preformed well once more, and our administration and teachers have done another exemplary job. The building principals, some in their inaugural year in our county, have kept students safe and their education top priority. We commend them all, along with their assistants, support staff and faculty for their commitment. We saw another graduating class; another year for college students to come closer to their academic and professional goals; and another year for parents to marvel at how quickly the time had passed.

The season of change has a power like no winter storm; unlike any spring rain; unlike an intense summer heat. The season of change shows the power of time, the progression of our days, and the constant march we make to tomorrow. It is in the season of change where we witness our most difficult challenges and our deepest opportunities for growth.

Jesus prepared His followers for change (Matthew 16:21). If for no other reason than to assure them, even in the most trying of circumstances, His promises and the promises of the Father in heaven, were always true and always reliable. The Lord promised the constant of the church (Matthew 16:18); the confidence of the resurrected Christ (Matthew 16:21); and the cost of forsaking all the world to follow the King of Kings, (Matthew 16:24-27).

So, what are the changes you are facing in your life? An upcoming school year? A new job? An empty nest? A fuller nest? I hope you know, the Centerville Church of Christ believes in the Lord to be with us in all our seasons, especially the season of change. We want you to know Him.

AS I AM WRITING THIS... article this week, we are right in the middle of Camp Kerusso. We have a good group of boys this week attending, and they are to be commended for what they are doing. I love this camp and feel very passionate about it. As one of our speakers this week has already pointed out to us, to be that much has been given, comes great responsibility. Our goal this week has been to help these young men discover the talents that God has given them, and see how they can use those talents for His glory! This is our 6th year doing Camp Kerusso. Many of these young men have attended for several years. It's amazing to see the growth that they have made not only spiritually, but also in their leadership abilities. We need more leaders in the church. We need more young men aspiring to preach the word. I am thankful that these boys have dedicated these four days to doing just that. Whether they preach full time, part-time, or on a one-on-one basis, it's great to see that they are excited about sharing the gospel! Please continue to pray for these young men as they continue to hone their skills and find their way as a servant in the kingdom. It has truly been a great week!

CAMP MERIBAH IS JUST AROUND THE CORNER AND I... know that a huge number of applications have already been turned in. If you have not turned in your application, go ahead and print one off of the website and turn that in to the church office. If you were unable to give a scholarship during May for Meribah, and would like to still give one, please feel free to do so either through the church office, a youth deacon, or Clay Chessor. What an awesome ministry we have in Camp Meribah, may we continue to pray for this ministry and those who oversee it. Summers on the hill have changed many lives and we pray that it will continue to do so in the future!

GO AHEAD AND BE SENDING OUT INVITATIONS AND... letting your friends know that Vacation Bible School is coming up on June 20-22. Our theme this year is "ibelieve" and we will be focusing on the miracles of Jesus. A ton of work has already went into VBS, and we are excited about the theme. VBS will start at 9am on these days and conclude around 11:30am. It will be a week that will undoubtedly bless your life!
